In the book, we follow Olivia, who is part of "The Ivies". The Ivies are five Claflin Academy girls that will do whatever it takes to win a spot in their dream colleges. Each Ivy was designated to a singular elite school that they were determined to get admitted to. Their prime rule was to not even attempt to apply to one of their fellow Ivy's desired schools. Olivia was always aware about how cruel the other girls could be in order to reach their goals, however, she never realized the full extent. When betrayal comes into play, one of the Ivies is found dead. Olivia is no longer sure who to trust or if she ever really knew her friends at all.

I personally really enjoyed this book. It kept me hooked throughout and I finished it in one day. It was a very engaging mystery that didn't leave me bored. It felt very honest and realistic, with a twisted ending. If you love murder mysteries, I think you should give this book a shot. It is now one of my favorite mysteries.
