Caraval is the perfect escape from reality that you can get. The book follows Scarlett who is on a hunt for her younger sister, Donatella, who is often reckless and impulsive. For years Scarlett wrote to a magician, called Legend, who was the mastermind behind a five night magical carnival that felt like real life. In order to win the game all of the contestants had to find Donatella and the first one would be granted a wish by Legend himself. Can Scarlett find her sister before the game ends, or will someone beat her to it?

I recommend this book to any one who is wondering what their next read should be. The world of Caraval is addicting and you get emerged into this world once you read the first sentence. The twists and turns of this book will leave you always wondering what will happen next and your teacher will yell at you for reading in class. The next two books in the series are even better and once you finish you'll wish you could read it for the first time again. Stephanie Garber describes this world in such vivid detail that you picture everything Scarlett is experiencing from where you are reading it.
