Sarah Henning is a romance novel that centers a couple running back to each other over and over again. It's about a woman who comes back to her hometown and reconnects with her high school football crush. Despite the long distance their souls made it back to each other exploring themes like second chances, power of love, and growth as individuals falling in love with each other.

The book is an emotional heartfelt book that centers in on love relating back to readers as Grace goes through personal growth to find herself again; originally she experiences heartbreak and loses trust in herself but slowly heals from her wounds. The story is a warm plot of finding hope in unexpected places.

I recommend this book for young adult readers as this is a good book to get into light romances to grow readers' love for books. Personally I rate this a 7 because it is a good novel but I felt like there could be more of an exciting plot but I did really enjoy the easy read and emotions that came along with following the love interests story.
